Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Status

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The basis of this rejection is set forth in a two-prong test of:

- (1) whether the invention is within the technological arts; and
- (2) whether the invention produces a useful, concrete, and tangible result.

For a claimed invention to be statutory, the claimed invention must be within the technological arts. Mere ideas in the abstract (i.e., abstract idea, law of nature, natural phenomena) that do not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts fail to promote the "progress of science and the useful arts" (i.e., the physical sciences as opposed to social sciences, for example) and therefore are found to be non-statutory subject matter. For a process claim, the recited process must somehow apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts.

In the present case, claims 1-3 only recite an abstract idea. The recited steps of merely managing product returns by interrogating an rf product label does not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts since all of the recited steps can be performed in the mind of the user or by use of a pencil and paper. These steps only constitute an idea of how to manage store returns.

Additionally, for a claimed invention to be statutory, the claimed invention must produce a useful, concrete, and tangible result. In the present case, the claimed invention produces records (i.e., repeatable) used in identifying and adjusting product inventory (i.e., useful and tangible).

Although the recited process produces a useful, concrete, and tangible result, since the claimed invention, as a whole, is not within the technological arts as explained above, claims 1-3 are deemed to be directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 2 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 2 and 5 recite the limitation "if the product was sold by the store recording operator authorization to add the product to inventory, adjusting inventory records to reflect addition of the product to inventory". This recitation renders these claims indefinite since it appears to be incomplete, suppose that the product was sold by another store chain? Clarification is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Art Unit: 3627

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1, 3 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Beller et al. (5,602,377).

As best understood, Beller et al. the method and system of managing product returns with the steps of: interrogating a radio frequency product label on a product returned to a store (via scanning or decoding a modified bar code dataform label associated with item of merchandise returned to a retailer), identifying the product from information obtained from the radio frequency product (via validating the item purchase price, date of sale and item stock keeping unit number), determining whether the product was sold by the store (via scanning the product pricing label which set forth which department the product is sold in), recording operator authorization to add the product to inventory (inherent since the operator or sale person handling the register have to be authorized to sale, accept returns and/or exchanges of merchandise in order to appropriately updated the inventory file), adjusting inventory records to reflect addition of the product to inventory (col. 12, lines 63-65).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claims 2 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Beller et al., in view of Otto (6,553,187)

Beller et al. discloses the elements of the claimed invention, however, fails to explicitly disclose the condition if the product was sold by the store. Otto discloses the concept of scanning RFID labels to determine the location of purchase, and seller. Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the product return and inventory files update of Beller et al. to include product sale location taught by Otto in order to keep an accurate and up-to-date inventory of a specific store.

Conclusion

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Bowers et al. discloses a system for interrogation radio frequency identification tags associated with packages.

Junger discloses a system and method for handling product returns via accessing manufacturer return approval computer system.

Levine et al. discloses a system and method for merchandise checkout including scanning and reading product tags to identify information within the product tag.

Whitman discloses a system and method for returning merchandise at a remote location.

Art Unit: 3627

Hauser et al. discloses a method and system for facilitating returns of merchandises purchased from a plurality of different merchants.
